Honoring our Veterans

Seated are Darwin Salo and Rob Curtis at the Waasa Cemetery, Embarrass, MN

Darwin and Rob have vowed to honor our Veterans for the past few years, since the Babbitt VFW Post #1539 disbanded. They can be found raising the many U.S. flags in observance of Memorial Day at Waasa (Amanda) Cemetery. This was a promise made to the late Ben Niemi, who served as a devoted cemetery sexton for many years. The pair will continue this service as long as they are able to do so. Their efforts are very much appreciated, as well as the Babbitt American Legion Post #535, for seeing that each Veteran's grave is acknowledged by small American flag.

“The Weasel Visits the Greenhouse”

By Richard E. Pierce
northernsolarlight@gmail.com

Gary Rantala always has a story to tell. And he’s as sharp as a tack. Last week Gary and I had a chance to visit at Waterview Pines in Virginia. During our visit we talked about many things. But rest assured Gary’s stories will always come back to the Embarrass Greenhouses. Gary and his wife Sharon ran the Embarrass Greenhouses for years. (maybe decades but who’s counting).

Today the story started off about a weasel that visited the greenhouse. Gary would be working alone when the weasel would appear in the doorway. The weasel standing tall on his hind legs. Once the weasel knew Gary was the only person in the greenhouses he would scurry off to look for a meal. That weasel kept the greenhouses free of mice. Always a friendly visit.

Gary talked about the many folks that came to his greenhouses in early spring to smell the flower baskets hanging in the warm, sun drenched high tunnels. Gary commented they were looking for a little sign of spring after a long winter. The greenhouses provided many with the feel of a country arboretum. One filled with sweet smells, bright colors, and long green stems, and leaves. A welcomed change from another long Minnesota winter.

Soon the days would lengthen and the local gardeners would trickle in. The coffee pot was always on. “Would you like a cup of coffee?” Gary would ask. An introduction to let the visitor know to stay as long as they liked. Gardens and gardening required good talks, a trading of planting practices, and a simple nudge from Gary “Have you had your soils tested?”. Gary believed in the science of monitoring soil conditions. He was proud of his test results compared to the UMN soil test lab. “My results were always very close to the U’s” Gary would say. “Never more than 10% off”.

Gary taught me a little about potatoes and what variety worked best in Northern MN. What Gary did not teach me was that my wife Ellen’s sheep liked potato tops and would eat the new green plants shortly after they sprouted. Those sheep set my potato production back years. But I found a solution. Plant my spuds a half mile away from the sheep pastures. This decreased their temptation to come over the fence and graze my tender little plants in early summer.

It never seemed dollars were the driving force behind Gary’s greenhouse business. I’m not saying Gary did not like to earn a few bucks for all his effort. My point. The greenhouses offered hope to many families for successful gardens for the canning season come fall. Today we want to run to IGA, SuperOne, or Zup’s for a few grocery items and call it good. Let someone else do the work is the mentality. But those times might be changing. The cost of a couple bags of groceries has reached the $60 to $80 dollar mark.

Gary and I share a few things in common. We both liked to play in the dirt. We we’re both educators, and served on the County Extension Committee for years together. One of my fondest memories was presenting Gary and Sharon with the Farm Family of the Year award at the St. Louis County Fair. Gary was always so gracious. Today the greenhouses are in need of repair and new life. The hoops have collapsed on a few of the hoop houses and the plastic sheathing has been left to the wind and rain for quick destruction. While driving by last winter on a stormy day I noticed streams of plastic being shredded into the air. These plastics end up in the Lake Superior Water Shed. The buildings sit like a haunted shell of what was once a thriving mecca to Embarrass MN.

Greenhouses are a community asset. Like grocery stores, banks, mercantile, and liquor stores they are part of the fabric of the community. In addition, greenhouses promote ag production. With a few seeds, a little TLC, some good jelly receipts, and canning techniques maybe we all can help create a world that needs less outside support and relies more on local networking. Greenhouses need community support.

A simple commodity like potatoes can change a community's reliance on corporate food systems. We live in a world of trust. We trust the grocery store will have what we need. We trust food shelves will help those that struggle through hard times. We trust schools will provide a nutrition program that supports students’ health as well as their educational goals. We trust there will be fuel at the pumps to fill our trucks, cars, and farm equipment at a reasonable price. We trust inflation is held to a level that does not out pace our incomes by more than a couple of percent. We understand this is not reality.

The corporate food system is causing harm to our bodies. Our food should be local. Not global. Cows should be roaming in our pastures. Potato trucks should leave the fields with full loads in the fall, and egg layers should be in every backyard. Regardless if you live on 40 acres or in town.

Embarrass is changing. Many good things are going on. Timberhall; after years of planning and grant writing, is moving forward to ensure future generations have a place to gather. EVFCU broke ground on a new bank in May. The Nelimark Homestead Museum has made improvements and continues to support a local cottage industry. Our fire department is well maintained. The pride that is displayed by the men and women of our local volunteer services needs more support. Always thank them. They help insure our safety 24/7 with little to no compensation. (Continued on the next page)

Embarrass is becoming the mecca everyone else wished they lived in. With the new Mesabi Bike Trail through the community, off-road trails, clean water in our rivers, crisp mornings, and a low population Embarrass and the surrounding communities are a place of peace and solitude.

We need to support local agriculture. Our health, and future depends on it. We need to continue to help our communities remain strong. How to move forward is a personal choice. Choose wisely and help. Thank you.

Forever thankful for their service!
